Hellim (Halloumi) is a traditional Cypriot cheese that is identified by its semi-hard and rubbery texture. It is a popular choice for many different dishes as an alternative to traditional cheese due to its high melting point. It is very popular worldwide due to its distinguished quality and unique taste. Hellim/ Halloumi can be made from different types of ways such as either from cow's milk or sheep's milk or a mixture of both. It is white with a distinctive layered texture and slightly has a salty flavor. Hellim/Halloumi is not very high in fat and it is an excellent source of protein.

The flavor of 'Hellim/Halloumi' is very appealing, unlike any other cheese; it is so versatile that it can be consumed fresh or used in cooking; can be fried until brown without melting due to its higher than normal melting point; making it a good cheese for frying or grilling. It can be grated on top of pasta and other dishes or used as a stuffing for ravioli and pastries, fried in cubes and served in soup. Also tastes delicious when used as an ingredient in salads, served with vegetables and as a sandwich ingredient.

Other than Halloumi (Hellim) cheese types in North Cyprus are Fresh Kasar, Processed Cheese, Fresh White Cheese, Mature Cheese and Mozzarella. Fresh Kasar Cheeses which are mostly produced from cow's milk are vacuum-packed.

Eaten in breakfasts and used in toasted sandwiches or on baked foods in the same way as mozzarella cheese. Fresh White Cheese is salty and made from unpasteurized sheep milk.

Fresh White Cheese (Beyaz peynir), Kashkaval and Mozzarella are produced in a variety of styles, ranging from non-matured cheese curds to a quite strong mature version. It is eaten plain, for example as part of the traditional Turkish breakfast, used in salads, and incorporated into cooked foods such as pita and börek.

North Cyprus Milk Products Producers use the latest technology equipment in the production of milk, Halloumi, butter, cheeses, and dozens of ice-cream varieties, which are manufactured in accordance with HACCP and ISO22000 standards.

Currently exporting to:

Western Asia and the Middle East,
Europe, South Asia, Central Asia
Australia and Northern America etc.

The Orange has a major role in the history, tradition, and culture of North Cyprus and its people. Oranges are grown for many purposes; eating, processing, oils and mainly for orange juice production. Cyprus had a wide number varieties of oranges and earned a reputation for its high quality. Valencia, Jaffa, Mandara are the most famous ones. Valencia Oranges are mainly exported to the Middle East, Asia and Europe. (Season: February–May) Jaffa Oranges have tough skin and are easily exported around the world. (Season: December–January) The Mandara synthesizes Mandarin and Orange. High demand from Turkey and Europe has allowed this variety to increase its levels in export. (Season: January–March). The Clementine has no seeds and is very juicy which increases in sales because it is easily edible mainly for children as well as adults. (Season: October–December) North Cyprus enjoys international recognition for the quality of its lemons. North Cyprus lemons have thin skin and incredible juiciness. The smell and the juice quality of North Cyprus Lemons are one of the best in the world. (Season: October–February) North Cyprus has an ideal climate for grapefruits. They are tender and juicy with a sweet-tart, mildly acidic flavor. Main Varieties are White Marsh Seedless, Rio Red. The season for this citrus fruit is between October – December. The citrus essence oils are used for medical and psychological treatment purposes and is essential for treatment of anger management, reducing anxiety, condense, memory and concentration.

AGRICULTURE

POTATOES & KOLOKAS & ARTICHOKES

North Cyprus Potatoes are grown in the unique environment that is a perfect blend of the red soil which has a higher mineral content, and the sunny mild-Mediterranean climate. Cyprus Potatoes are harvested twice a year: autumn and spring harvest. Spring potatoes are harvested for sale earlier than most other European and Middle Eastern countries. Favourable climate conditions in North Cyprus lead to early harvesting where the spring crop is harvested from April to June and the fall crop is harvested from November to December. North Cyprus also offers GLOBALGAP certified potatoes to the leading markets.

Season: Spring and Autumn

The variety of artichokes grown in North Cyprus is called the Green Globe. These types of artichokes contain magnesium, dietary ber and chromium which involve Vitamin C and Vitamin A. Modern facilities are available for the production of heart Artichokes which are supplied as; fresh, frozen and concentrated.

These products can be provided throughout the year.

Season: January–May.

Kolokas is a type of vegetable grown mainly in Cyprus for its edible roots named Taro and Eddie. This plant has been in Cyprus since the time of the Roman Empire which has early cultivation and can be harvested easily. The increasing demand for exportation has boosted the amounts produced and mainly 90 % of the exports are made to the United Kingdom.

Currently exporting to: Western Asia, Middle East and Europe.

POMEGRANATES

North Cyprus has suitable climate conditions for pomegranate growing. The production of pomegranate fruits has increased significantly due to new cultivation areas and investors in the last decade. The modest production over the last years was replaced with a professional and rational investment program in pomegranate production which has already led to higher demand for North Cyprus in the crops. Season: September – December

Currently exporting to: Middle East

CAROB

As the carob tree is one of the traditional trees in North Cyprus, it is a well-known country for providing organic carobs to worldwide markets. Almost half of the production of carobs, including the carob seed and grounded carob, is exported each year. The valuable seed of carob can be used for a variety of production like paint, ink, textiles, paper, insecticides and shoe polish. Carob is considered as the 'black gold' of North Cyprus and seeds are used to make locust bean gum – sometimes known as Ceratonia or carob bean gum which is a high-value export commodity.

TOBACCO AND CIGARETTES

One of the best quality products of North Cyprus is Tobacco. Cigarette packing factory in Nicosia produces for local consumption and for export to Turkey only. On the other hand tobacco leaf production is targeted just for US and Germany pipe tobacco markets.
